Be a volunteer and remember to report your volunteering

The personal rewards of being a volunteer are GREAT! There is the satisfaction of applying your skills and intellect to help others. Volunteering stimulates growth, both personal and professional. Learning new skills brings fulfillment and experience. As a member of the Volunteer Family, you discover those who share your values and broaden your circle of friends and associates. However, the greatest reward comes from knowing you are providing an important service, responding to real human needs with compassion, dedication, and ability.
